

Jwala Mata Ki Jyot

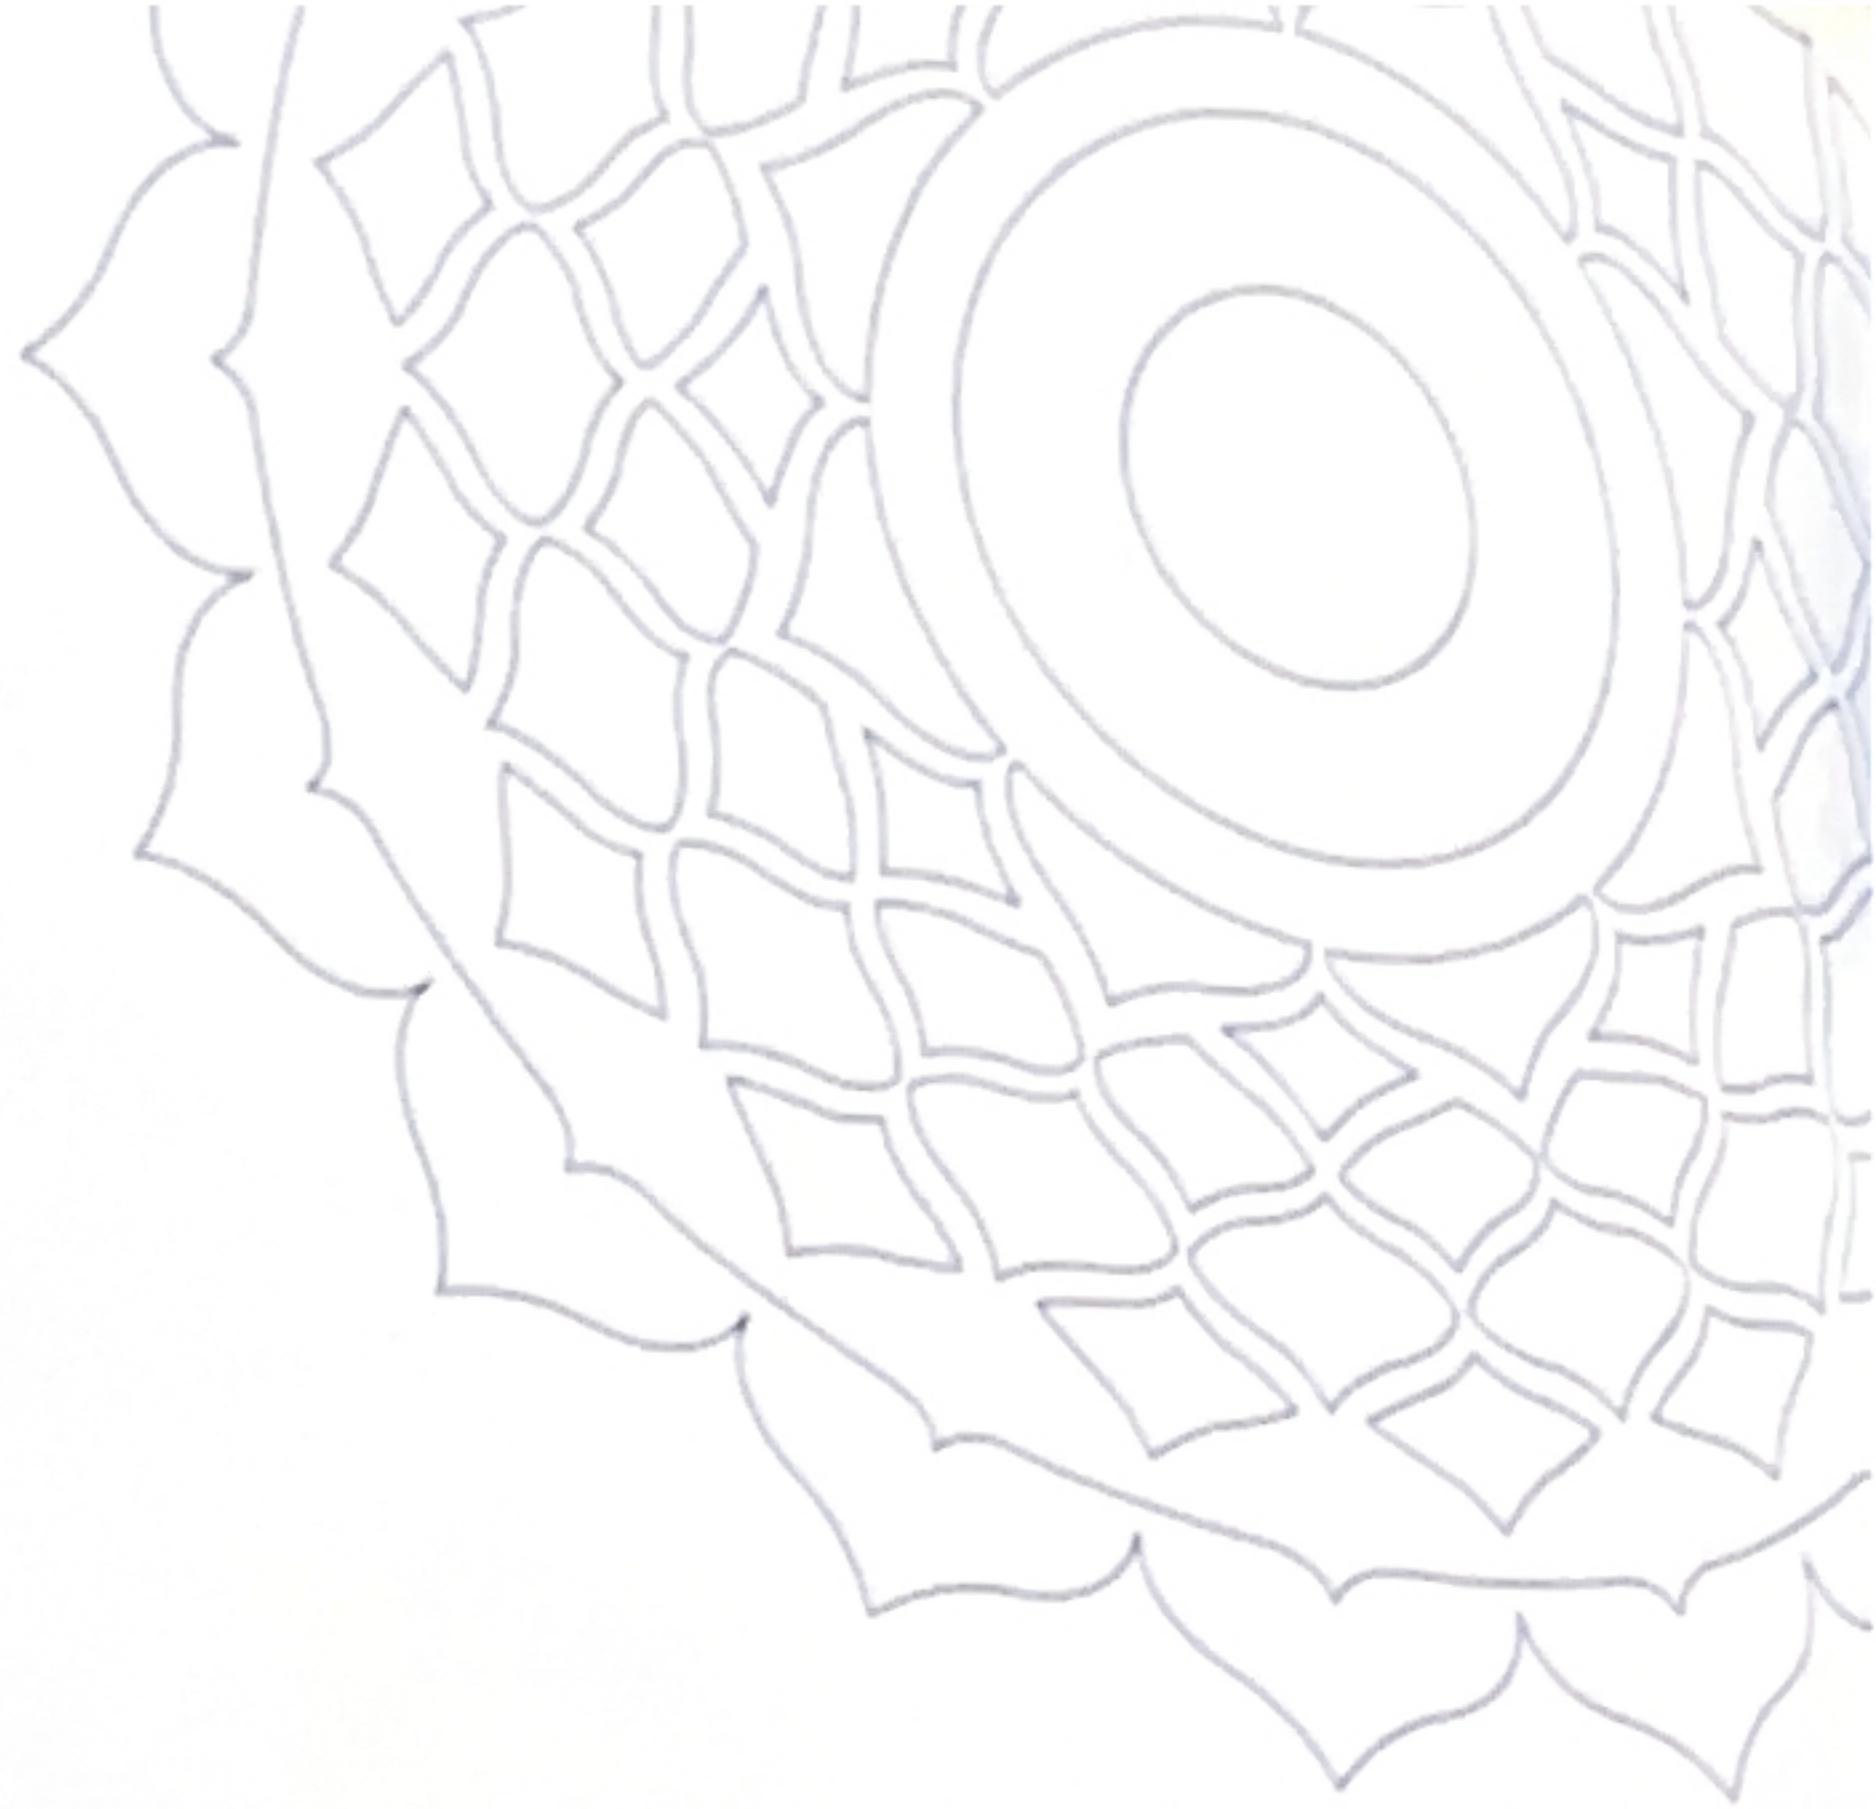

Shree Lakshminarayan Temple enjoys the privilege of being the first temple outside India to install the sacred flame from the Jwala Ji shrine in Himachal Pradesh. This event was marked by a grand ceremony attended by over 1500 devotees who witnessed the installation of a new shrine where the holy flame was placed. The event that took six months for planning was set off by a "Shoba Yatra", a holy procession from the main shrine by road and passed through various Indian states before heading to Singapore from New Delhi. The temple authorities hope that devotees in the neighboring countries like Malaysia or Thailand can easily visit the shrine in Singapore rather than travel all the way to India to see the sacred flame. This also serves as an attraction for the visitors and pilgrims engaged in religious activities.

MURUGAN HILL TEMPLE

The growth of Murugan Hill temple is a reflection of an ardent devotee's faith in God. An incidental discovery of a small divine structure that resembled the image of Lord Muneeswaran in Lam Sam Village, led to a sequence of events that resulted in the construction of this quaint temple. When Mr Shanmugam, a plumber attached to the RAF related his experience, the villagers offered their first prayers to mark the discovery of Lord Muneesawaran's statue. From then, prayers were conducted daily and the place was lit up.

An unexpected fire that resulted from the clearance of debris by the villagers spread to the neighboring huts and created panic. When the issue was brought to the attention of Union President, he instructed the villagers not to visit the area, and also warned them of police action if they failed to abide. After six months, a dream brought Mr Lingam, (another RAF member) back to the sacred spot. With the support of the villagers, the shrine was lit up again and daily prayers commenced.

In 1969, when HDB resettlement authority issued a site clearance notice, the temple committee appealed to the MP for reconsideration and succeeded in getting a temporary permit. Around the same time, the main deity, Lord Muneeswaran was replaced with Lord Murugan triggered by the advice of a priest in "Maha Mariamman Temple" of Johor. In the year 1972, the temple was also registered and officially named Murugan Hill Temple. Interestingly, the temple's name was nonchalantly suggested by three small boys playing outside the temple.

With the lapse of the temporary permit in 1992, the temple had to be shifted to its current location at Upper Bukit Timah Road after receiving a settlement amount of $20,600. The temple committee was then presented with a massive task of launching the Temple Building project. The committee that was operating with very limited funds spruced up their building fund-raising project. Their efforts, determination and devotion paved the way for a beautiful temple that has stood the test of time since 1998.
